

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a novel process for producing quinazoline compounds which are useful in therapy. More specifically, the compounds are useful in the treatment of benign prostatic hyperplasia.